

7 THINGS TO LOOK FOR IN AN APP FELLOWSHIP

1 BOARD-CERTIFIED INSTRUCTORS

It is pivotal to employ instructors or faculty that are certified, practicing clinicians, preferably who are considered experts in their field of practice. Your faculty should be equipped to lead timely, relevant, and evidence-based discussions.

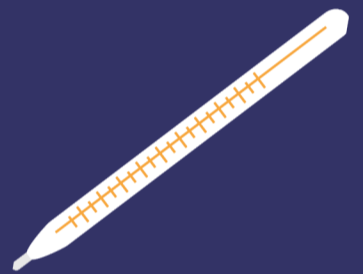

2 EXPERT SPEAKERS

The speaker's ability to deliver meaningful lectures and lead dynamic discussions is as equally important as their credentials.

3 ROBUST CURRICULUM

Patient care is exceedingly more complex today, making the role of NPs and PAs more complex. Your curriculum needs to be robust in scope to account for the skills required to optimally perform their roles in today's environment.

4 MENTORSHIP & SUPPORT

Establishing a formal mentorship program, or a structured mentorship component to your APP fellowship, is important for continuous improvement. Providers who feel supported and guided in their transition to practice journey will become more confident, capable, and empowered APPs.

5 SCALABLE PROGRAMS

Your transition to practice education needs to undergo continuous management and content improvement that can scale with the changing techniques in care.

6 ACCREDITED PROGRAMS

By utilizing an accredited curriculum as part of your APP fellowship, you can trust the content is certified and demonstrates a high-level of educational acumen in providing effective, practice-based continuing education.

7 USER FRIENDLY LMS

Organizations should look for a program that offers one aligned platform connecting learning insights, flexibility, and ease of use for instructor-led training, for each group that will use the system: APPs, Employers & Instructors.
